Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing its member stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the Presidential election. This is contrary to its obligation to use the public airwaves in the public interest. Further, it deprives its audiences of regular network programming for a clearly political end. Local communities have no choice in this matter and are being dictated to by a large corporation that owns too many TV stations in too many markets. This decision displays the arrogance possible today with the conglomeration of media ownership.
